The Westminster Way

“The Westminster Way.” A set of seven core values that represent the essence of the education and experience here at Westminster College; tradition, success, learning, challenge, service, compassion, and faith. These values have been a part of our College for 158 years and this year, the Argo staff applied all seven to our book, pairing each one to a specific section. Students and faculty members address each core value by sharing their personal experiences and thoughts about the college and its activities. We hope that you enjoy the 2011 Argo yearbook: The Westminster Way.

Events

"When I think of Westminster one of the first words that comes to mind is tradition. Since 1852, Westminster has been built around traditions and, most importantly, the constant support in upholding and fulfilling these traditions year after year. Whether it's campus events around homecoming, or the tradition of the Westminster kindness to one another, students, faculty, and staff aid in continuing Westminster's traditions year after year.

Junior Daniel Stephenson gets his Gaga on at Late Night.

As freshmen left their tear-filled parents, there were many thoughts running through their heads. Where am I supposed to go? Why did I decide to go to college and not stay at home? Who are all of these people? Little did these students know, they were merely taking steps toward their future at Westminster. With professors lining the path, the newly initiated college students walked towards their ultimate goal: getting out of the heat.

On Friday, August 27th, the first years met their new-found family, their Fresh Start group, which consisted of members of their Inquiry class. The classmates worked together in teams to learn more about each other and their leaders. This trend continued throughout the Fresh Start program as they shared meals and went to different lectures together. At night, after a long day of grueling workshops and a head full of Westminster facts, the Fresh Start leaders and SGA members entertained the new students with comedy skits including the classic 'Ten Ways We Can Tell You Are a First Year.' There was also an Eliminate contest where first-year girls competed for a date with one lucky first year boy. Finally, there was a Reggae Dance where fresh starters and leaders danced the night away with Rudy and the Professionals.

As the week came to a close, students not only had a better understanding of the small campus, but made some unlikely friends along the way.

President Dorman invites students to relax from a hard day of Fresh Start activities and to partake in a free meal at his house.

"Get away on the Gateway"

The dance floor was packed all night. From the balcony, it is easy to see the party raging on below.

Sophomores Sarah Welsh, Erin Abbott, Brooke Miller, Katie Farley, and Chloe Stanczak are ready to dance the night away but pause before boarding the boat.

Gateway Clipper

The night of the Gateway Clipper dance was pleasantly warm and inviting as students gathered for the annual CPC event. Buses loaded from the field house at 9:00 pm on September 10 to transport the students into Pittsburgh. A shared atmosphere of anticipation accompanied the group into the city; participants looked forward to what experiences the night would bring.

The party officially began as the boat's engine came to life at 11:00 pm. Those students who chose to dance showed their moves off while listening to familiar tunes. Some attendees preferred to converse with one another; other students ventured to the upper deck of the boat to catch a glimpse of the city at night. Regardless of how they passed time, the party extended late into the night and next morning.

The dance was a success in many minds; new bonds were formed as memories were made. The students enjoyed themselves and, at the very least, had an opportunity to "Getaway on the Gateway."

Homecoming Parade

One gorgeous October weekend at Westminster College revealed that, really, "It's a Small World (After All)."

Alumni, friends, and family eagerly joined current students in celebration of 2010's Disney-themed Homecoming weekend.

Titled "Return for the Magic," the annual Homecoming parade kicked off the festivities on October 9 at 10:30 a.m. along Market Street. The fraternities, sororities, and other campus groups made floats themed after classic Disney movies such as Aladdin, Pirates of the Caribbean, The Little Mermaid, and many others.

Additional participants included: the Westminster Titan Marching Band, local Scout troops, Homecoming king and queen candidates, the Wilmington Area

High School Marching Band, and local businesses or community groups. The parade entries were judged by members of the Class of 1960.

Zeta Tau Alpha won the first place award for their float, The Little Mermaid. A close second went to Sigma Kappa, for Beauty and the Beast, and Alpha Gamma Delta received third place, for Alice in Wonderland.

Throughout the event, small children chased after parade candy, while students cheered on float participants and Homecoming court candidates. Graduates searched for and shared memories with former classmates.

Senior Kellie Clemens and junior Molly Sharbaugh share the spotlight on Sigma Kappa's Beauty and the Beast float.

Junior Sara Seiberling leads the Phi Mu in group cheers as they march down Market Street.

Lead by senior Brendan Keiper, the talent of the Westminster Titan Marching Band was seen and heard throughout New Wilmington.

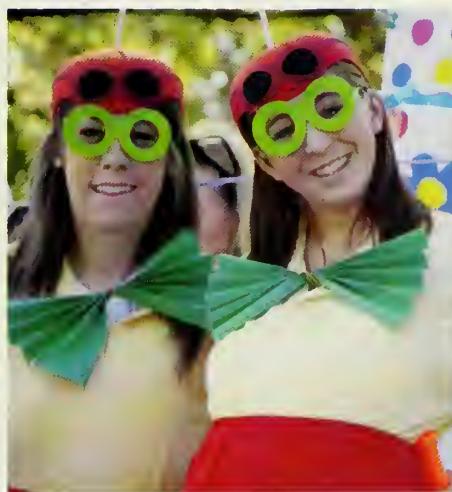

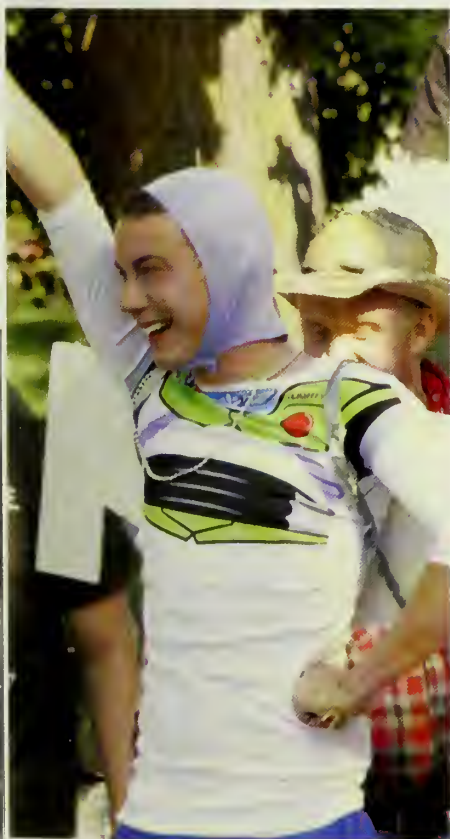

Brooke Emmonds and the Zeta Tau Alphas invite spectators to journey "Under the Sea" on The Little Mermaid float.

Seniors Kevin Caprally, Coty Hamsey, and Tim Wolf show off their roguish attire on Alpha Sigma Phi's Pirates of the Caribbean float.

“Dreams do come true.”

October 9th at 1 p.m., the Titans played a grueling game against the Bethany Bisons. The Titans jumped out to an early ten point lead, in what would prove to be a grueling contest. During halftime, the Greek and Independent candidates for king and queen stood in a row waiting to see would be crowned. The crowd patiently looked on as former Homecoming Royalty Matt Monahan and Katie Gray presented the crowns.

After a grueling week of campaigns and much anticipation, the Queen and King were named. Zeta Tau Alpha's Lexie Elliot and Independent candidate Will Armentrout were named this year's Homecoming Queen and King.

Once the winners were announced, the game continued. Unfortunately, the Titans were unable to hold their original lead, and the game ended in a loss for Westminster.

Sarah McCarty and Krystal Edmiston show their Westminster pride by sporting beads and their Titan gear.

A Little Night Music

This semester, Theatre Westminster went down in the history books of performing one of the most intricate and difficult shows ever seen on Westminster's campus. "A Little Night Music", written by Hugh Wheeler and music by Stephen Sondheim challenged the actors and actresses to step up their game. The show, inspired by Ingmar Bergman's film "Smiles of a Summer Night," tells the story of intertwined romantic couples from different backgrounds.

Middle aged Frederick Egerman, played by junior Todd Slobodnyak, is a successful lawyer and married to his trophy wife, Anne, a twenty year old virgin, played by sophomore Hannah Jaskiewicz. Frederick's son Henrick, played by senior Jimmy Cochran is a year older than his stepmother and is extremely pious and frustrated. He is constantly teased by both Anne and Petra, the flirtatious maid, played by junior Ali Pabrinkis.

Desiree Armfeldt, played by junior Chelsea Gallo, is a prominent and glamorous actress touring in small towns. Madame Armfeldt, Desiree's mother, played by sophomore Hannah De Leon, has taken over the care of Desiree's daughter Fredrika, played by junior Victoria Walker.

Desiree and Frederick are reunited and fall back in love with each other. Not only is Fredrick's young wife an issue, but so is Desiree's dragoon, the married Count Carl-Magnus Malcolm, played by senior Tim Giblin. His wife Charlotte, played by sophomore Hannah Timm, knows about the affair and devises a plan to win him back. The characters are invited to "A Weekend in the Country" where they resolve their problems and everyone lives happily ever after.

The show also has five Liebeslieder singers who act like a Greek Chorus and comment on the events of the characters throughout the show. The group was made up of senior Deanna Owens, sophomores Lauren Claypool, Christian Heasley, and Alex Patterson, and freshman Greg McClelland.

The actors devoted many hours of their lives to rehearsal, but their efforts surely paid off. Through hard work and dedication, this cast performed a magical show that shall be remembered for years.

Todd Slobodnyak and Chelsea Gallo receive a surprise visit from senior Tim Giblin while in their night clothes.

Todd Slobodnyak finally realizes his love for Chelsea Gallo and they decide to spend the rest of their lives together.

Hannah Jaskiewicz and Jimmy Cochran fall in love and realize that they are meant for each other.

Hannah Timm listens as Tim Giblin sings about the trouble with women.

Junior Dave Merrick, Hannah DeLeon and Victoria Walker share the stage while performing a thoughtful scene.

Ali Pabrinkis performs “The Miller’s Son,” singing about the joy and freedom she longs for before becoming trapped in marriage.

Christmas Vespers

Christmas Vespers, a treasured and annual event, adds to the holiday cheer of students and unites them as one body. Senior Joe Anderson believes that "Christmas Vespers is a great time for the campus to come together in preparation for the Christmas holiday and experience worship together." On December 5, the sights and sounds of the Christmas season were tangible within the doors of Orr Auditorium as campus proclaimed that "Something's Coming." The service contained traditional readings detailing the birth of Christ and the singing of various carols but also added new elements. Incorporated into the evening were explanations of some of the most beloved Christmas carols and a drama presentation. An offering was collected to help fund student work trips over spring break.

Following the lighting of the second Advent candle, senior Matthew Bickert reads a passage from the Old Testament foretelling of the birth of Jesus Christ.

First year Hillary Leslie and the hand bell choir play during the service.

"To me, Christmas Vespers is a time to celebrate the birth of Christ while joining in fellowship with not only the Westminster campus, but with the surrounding communities as well."

The Women's and Men's Chorus, Concert Choir, and Chamber Singers unite as one group under the direction of Dr. Robin Lind.

Senior Kayla Castille shares with those attending the service what Mary might have thought and felt leading up to the first Christmas.

Members of the Gospel Choir begin the annual service by singing "Bless the Lord (Son of Man)."

Fall Events

During the Fall Semester at Westminster, much was happening. There were several philanthropy events held. Alpha Gamma Delta hosted their traditional Newlywed game in the days leading up to homecoming. Homecoming candidates had to guess unique facts about their partners through a multitude of questions. The sisters of Phi Mu shared a laugh with their annual Stand Up Stand Off event where students from various organizations performed a comedy skit.

CPC brought several bands on campus, including the hit band We Shot The Moon, an indie rock favorite. If students were hypnotized by their music, they had a second opportunity to be when PRSSA brought Barry Balaski, a hypnotist to campus. They raised money for the Epilepsy fund.

Other events this semester include Danceathon, Ice Cream Social, Jeff Sheng's Fearless Photography display, Titan Terror Project, Tibetan Monks Dissolution of the Sand Mandalas, and several others.

Dani Dietz, Kelly Gould, Erin Abbott, and Chloe Stanczak "throw what they know" in the tunnel during SGA's Tour of the Unknowns in November.

Humans vs Zombies participants gather for a photo after a week long hunt for fresh meat. All of their proceeds from this event went to the Keep It Campaign that raises money to build work environments for people in South Africa.

Mu Phi Epsilon held their Open Mic Night in October where they raised over $130 for VH1's Save the Music Foundation. Students on campus were invited to perform with either live music or karaoke.

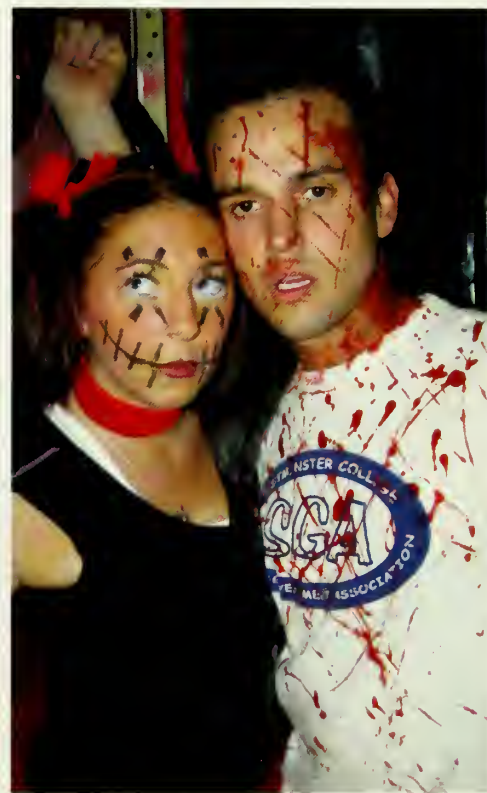

The brothers of Sigma Nu host their concert event SigmaphiNUza featuring Kontraband. Create My Tee sponsored a competition and whichever Sig Nu chapter had the most votes won a free concert for their school.

Megan Ostrowski and Jared Palonis frighten guests at Alpha Sigma Phi's Haunted House raising over $1,000 for the Keystone Blind Association and Livestrong.

Stephanie Lehman, Brooke Miller, Bethany Ekimoff and Allison Ward are all smiles after Zeta Tau Alpha's Shoot for the Cause. They raised a record breaking $8,601.73 this year to support Breast Cancer Research.

Josh Beckert, Ed Bigler, Josh Masters, Patrick Suretovski, and Brian Mack show their Titan Pride at the first ever Night Game.

Red Herring

Ali Pabrinkis and Tim Giblin visit the coroner to determine the cause of death.

Shortly after the beginning of the spring semester, students returned to the acting stage with a loud and successful bang. Red Herring opened February 24 in Beeghley Theater to an expectant audience; it was a play to be remembered beyond its closing night of February 27.

Set in 1952, Red Herring follows the story of a murder mystery that is not what it seems and three intertwined romances that must mature in the midst of the political climate of the Cold War. The play is true to its title; many twists and turns come and go as the story progresses.

From the design of the set to the strong performance of the actors, the students involved in this production thought of every possible detail. Even accents were practiced and perfected so that Red Herring's audience would be immersed in not only the sights but also the sounds of 1952.

To first year Adam Seymour, this play was about more than just the work involved. "The funny thing about the cast of the Red Herring was how quickly we became very close. I loved "munch munch brunch brunch" and the moments when the cast weren't on stage where some of the best. Being a freshman it also gave me an early opportunity on stage but more importantly meeting some great people on this campus."

After a terrible accident, Kyle Bruinooge returns blind and takes a dive off the stage.

Tim Giblin questions "mute" Zach O'Conner during the murder investigation while Morgan McNeal translates to maintain their cover story.

Crimes of the Heart

The southern drama, Crimes of the Heart, is a Pulitzer Prize winner and a memorable choice for the final theatre production of the spring semester. It opened the evening of April 14 with a final performance the evening of April 17. Crimes of the Heart was performed on the Beeghly Theater stage and directed by Dr. Scott Mackenzie.

Set in Mississippi, Crimes is centered around the lives of the three young, dysfunctional MaGrath sisters. When the youngest sister attempts to murder her husband, the women must bond together to protect her. Their time together enables the sisters to grow, remember the past, and heal from situations in their lives.

The roles of the three MaGrath sisters were played by sophomores Courtney Jackson, Maddison Welton, and Tara Holl. Senior Jimmy Cochran played Doc Porter, first year Nicole Heasley played Chick, and senior Tim Giblin played Barnette Lloyd. Crimes of the Heart was another of many memorable plays to be performed on campus. Senior Jimmy Cochran will cherish this as his final college production. "I was proud to be a part of this unique theatre experience and will miss performing with Theatre Westminster. Thanks for the memories!"

An old flame reignites between Tara Holl and Jimmy Cochran.

Tara Holl and Courtney Jackson share a moment on stage.

The MaGrath sisters finally celebrate Lenny's birthday (Courtney Jackson) by eating cake.

Sophomore Tawni Darby danced in the number she choreographed, "Jar of Hearts."

First Year Chelsea Haybarger in her choreographed dance "Find a Way."

"Que Sera," choreographed by seniors Emma Montgomery and Sara Ergen won the Lambda Sigma sponsored "People's Choice Award" for favorite dance.

Dance Theater 2011

Westminster's Dance Theater put on its 30th annual show in April titled "Feel the Rhythm." A total of 69 dancers were involved with Dance Theater this year, and every single one of them worked tirelessly to perfect their dances so they could deliver a quality show to their audience. Dance Theater provides a creative outlet for those who enjoy dancing, and they welcome dance enthusiasts of all skill levels and backgrounds. Emily Domasky states that, "This was the first time that I choreographed for Dance Theater, although I have danced the last 2 years. It was an extremely vulnerable experience, taking something of my own and teaching it to 7 other girls, then performing that piece for friends, family, teachers and the community. I loved every moment of it and I am so thankful that I got to work with amazing people who have been blessed with such great talent!" While this is definitely an organization that requires dedication, time, and perseverance, the end results are well worth it.

"Dance Theater is just one of those organizations that constantly makes you smile. It's so much fun to be able to dance with all of your friends and create pieces that express all different types of emotions."

Relay for Life

Changing Lives One Step at a Time

The annual Relay for Life event was held on a dreary Saturday, April 2, 2011 but the moods of everyone there was far from dreary. Relay for Life is Alpha Sigma Phi's philanthropic event. This event has been on campus for 14 years and its purpose is raising money for a cure for cancer. Alpha Sigma Phi involves the whole community by reaching out to local businesses and members of the campus community to come together to raise awareness. Ben Cochran, Alpha Sigma Phi senior, shared

"Westminster College and the New Wilmington community really came together in an amazing way! We all have felt the effects of cancer in some way, whether it be our family, friends, or co-workers. Relay 2011 was a true testament to the value of community and working together for a common cause."

Participants in Relay for life are required to be in teams of 8-15 people walking, jogging, or running around the track at Harold Burry Stadium. The teams run the relay for 12 straight hours. The Survivors Walk kicked off the day. There were also areas for people to play volleyball, football, soccer, and cornhole. To conclude the event, music and fireworks took place. This year Alpha Sigma Phi raised money for the local American Cancer Society and Cochran shared, "With the help of everyone involved we were able to raise over $22,000 so that those who go through this struggle can have more birthdays."

Live music by Insulin concluded the day's events along with fireworks sponsored in part by SGA.

Sig Kap sisters Deanna Moose, Megan Donaldson, Catie Fleckenstein, and Jayne Piskorik enjoy their time at Relay for Life.

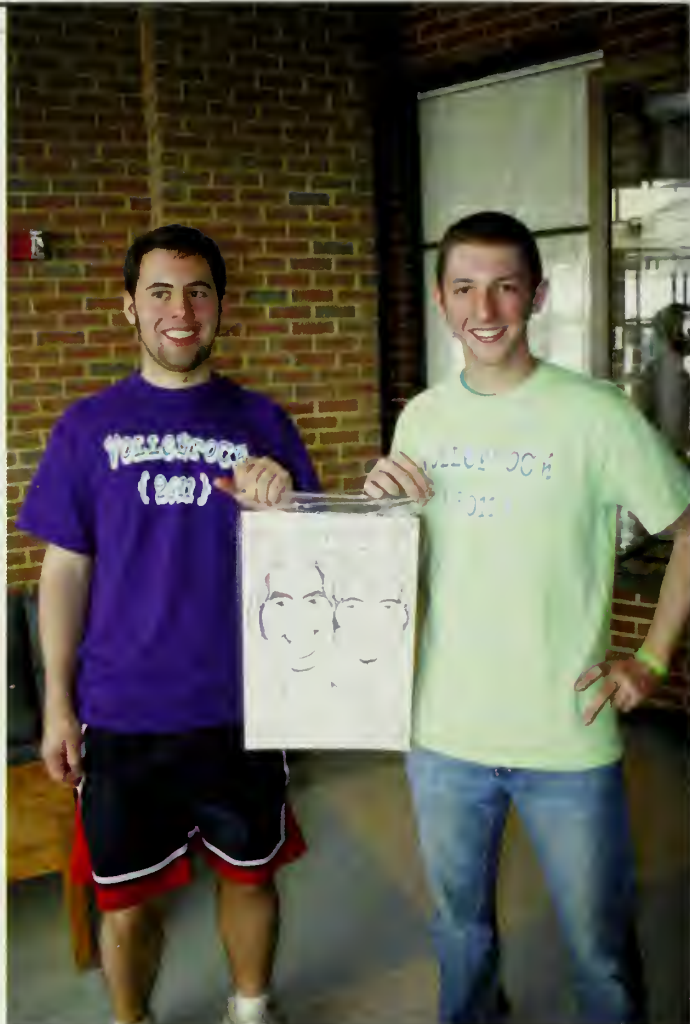

Brothers of Alpha Sigma Phi cheer on the participants of Relay for Life.

The Ligo brothers, Joe and Rich, show off their family resemblance in their caricature.

Team Toolbox took second place in the competition. Todd Slobodnyak, Tara Incerpi, Elyse Brigham, Kaci Batzel, Mike Barringer, and Dan Gutman.

Jordan Zabo and Erica Szweczyk serve free popcorn and snow cones.

Team Cunning Stunts (Aleya Tylinski, Ryan Carr, Brian Mack, Milt Constantine, Justine VanCise, Rebecca Riemer, and Ed Bigler) won the tournament and a $500 prize!

VolleyRock

The spring semester was wrapped up by SGA's annual volleyball tournament, VolleyRock. The weekend began with a concert Friday night by Frank Viele and the Manhattan Project and Hellogoodbye. Then 9am Saturday morning the tournament kicked off. There was a $500 reward given to the winning team and this year, Team Cunning Stunts took first place. Other perks to participating included: free snow cones, cotton candy, a photo booth, henna tattoos, caricature drawings, and, of course, all-you-can-eat Quaker Steak and Lube wings. Over 120 teams competed in this year's tournament. Chelsea Piccirilli, the SGA vice president, says "The experience of planning and coordinating VolleyRock truly cannot be described with one word. It's frustrating, stressful, exhausting, but when you see the finished work and the entire campus enjoying an event that you worked so hard on it is so exciting, fun, and rewarding. I would not have traded this position for anything."

The crowd cheer on their fellow players during the volleyball tournament.

Spring Events

There were quite a few notable events that happened during the Spring Semester. There were multiple bands on campus this semester, including: Westminster's own Alayna and Zeb, KontraBand, the Manhattan Project, and Hellogoodbye. A Year With Frog and Toad, based off of the children's novel, was the Chapel Drama musical. The Westminster campus showed their support for children without shoes in other countries by participating in Toms No Shoes Day, which was organized by Green Party. The Campus Cook off brought both delectable smells and tastes to Westminster students. Lil Sib's Weekend was a success, with events such as: a hypnotist, magician, and live owl show to keep everyone entertained over the weekend. Dance Theater held their 30th annual performance with seventeen different dances and 69 total dancers. SGA's VolleyRock tournament also took place over this Spring. They provided food, entertainment, and fun for all those who were involved in the event. Overall, it was a fun-filled and busy semester with many different types of functions to attend.

First year Adam Seymour gives SGA day a thumbs up.

Junior Brian Mack performs as Man Bird in Chapel Drama's production of "A Year with Frog and Toad."

Students enjoy a weekend on the slopes with ski club's trip to Snowshoe in West Virginia.

Sigma Nu receives a $5000 check for their philanthropy after winning the CreateMyTee contest. KontraBand Music performed a free concert.

Junior Will Armentrout spends time with his lil' sibs for the weekend.

Graduation

Graduation is a bittersweet ending. The stress of headache-inducing assignments, endless research papers, and late-night cram sessions fades. Students empty apartments and dorm rooms. Realities of graduate school or job searching surface. Friends and classmates prepare to say goodbye. Celebrating students don graduation caps and gowns. This distinct conclusion melds unforgettable college memories and hopes for bright futures.

Westminster College hosted its 157th annual Commencement exercises on Saturday, May 21st. The Office of Academic Affairs organized the Baccalaureate and Commencement ceremonies.

The Baccalaureate service featured alumnus Rev. Dr. Stephen McConnell speaking on the "Best Laid Plans." Seniors Sara Zebley and Alayna Carroll also sang a song, "The Last Days," they wrote together for the occasion.

The Class of 2011 featured 223 graduates. Dr. Phyllis Kitzerow received the Distinguished Faculty Award. An honorary degree was awarded to the ceremony's main speaker, former college Trustee Wendall Freeland. Senior Speaker Candace Okello addressed the audience with her speech "Bind Up the Testimony."

Congratulations and good luck, Class of 2011!

*"I'd give anything
for the time we shared together.*

*I'd give anything
to laugh with you again.*

*I wish that this could last forever,
But I'll miss you now, my friend.*

"Bind Up the Testimony"

The most difficult thing about writing speeches is trying to be original. I told myself that if I made it to this podium today, I would assume the responsibility of avoiding all lines that included, live out your dreams, you are somebody, and you learn from your mistakes. I personally felt that I had to produce greatness filled with philosophic idioms, and thirteen letter words. But, I realized that it is hard to steer clear of clichés when many of our stories have developed out of the very expressions that I've tried to avoid.

How can I avoid quotes from Langston Hughes who tells us to "Hold fast to dreams?" How can I overlook Emily Dickenson who wrote, "I dwell in possibility?" And, many of us have taken on the attitude of Thoreau. We have embraced our distinctive identities and have been stepping to the beat of our own drums. Yes, we have learned from our mistakes, we know that we are somebody, and we understand the stress, tears, and capacity necessary to pursuing a dream. If we did not know this, we may not be sitting here today. Out of those common quotes and triteness of ubiquitous sayings comes the uniqueness of individual Westminster memoirs.

It was the moment that we stepped out of our cars onto Westminster's campus in 2007 that marked the beginning of our narratives, and it was the preface to the greatness that was to follow. As we moved through next chapters of experience, we began to further immerse ourselves in the core values of The Westminster Way. We compassionately served, learned through our challenges, and prayed for successes through our faith. We pleaded for that same compassion when we slept through our alarm clocks on test days. As a result, we learned to set two. Our faith was challenged every time we went to purchase books. We prayed that there something in our bank accounts to pay for seven hundred dollar textbooks. And, we measured our success by our ability to avoid falling up the steps of McKelvey during lunchtime. These are the pages we've probably tried to rip out of our memory, but it has been these very moments that have made our time here worth the writing about. Even with our many missteps, I'm encouraged.

Looking into the rows of black gowns, I've heard many of your stories. Your visions for progress and aspirations for change are reflections of your heart. I've sat next to some of you who say you want to use a pen as a device to inform; you wish to write about the injustices and inequities that plague our communities. I've eaten lunch with some who have said, "Teaching is my thing", and I've walked across the quad with some who have such an immense desire to serve the world. There is nothing more encouraging than being surrounded by like-minded individuals. For that reason, I am encouraged. I am looking at young, educated individuals who have decided to carry burdens of obligation. I'm encouraged because you all have chosen to take the road less traveled in pursuit of goals bigger than yourselves. I am encouraged because you've chosen to use your gifts for the shifting of paradigms and not for recognition, and I am encouraged because from what I've read about some of you, the world isn't ready. People will be captivated by language of your of thoughts, taken aback by your intellectual capacity, and will understand the advantages of attending this fine institution.

Reflecting on my own story, I initially came to Westminster with the intent to do my work, graduate, and get a job with a decent salary. However, I've realized that I've have gained more throughout my four years here than I ever will with a diploma, because I've received the reward of personal growth. I've received an income of strength and my pockets have been lined with purpose, truth, and faith because these are the intangible benefits that have gotten me through my years here at Westminster. They will forever sustain me as I make many transitions throughout my life.

I've gone from hoping for the best, to settling for nothing less. I came in crying because of my inability to adapt, but I'm leaving knowing that my time here has been justified. Out of my frustration came purpose, and through purpose came a new attitude. I hope you all understand that the knowledge and skills that you've acquired are for purposes greater than our vast vocabularies can articulate.

Ask now that you begin reflecting on your past four years. Begin flipping through the pages of your memory and reflect on the content that has developed into a testimony. Write down the algorithms that have given you answers to life's most complex problems, type out the processes that have helped you navigate through the toughest days, and staple together the pages of your laughter and achievements. Today, we complete the final chapter of undergraduate memoir. So, pace yourself as you listen to the beat of your own drum and dwell in the possibilities of your dreams as we bind up our testimony.

This speech is dedicated to every faculty member, administrator, support staff and classmate who has ever contributed a word of encouragement or offered lines of endless support. You will forever be etched in my memory and in my heart.

Thank you and congratulations to the class of 2011.

Academics

“What my Westminster students have been able to learn from me comes from a measure of what I have learned from them. My life has been abundantly enriched by the students who have become friends. Fortunately, even though my time on campus will be much reduced, those life-long friendships will remain.”

*-Dr. Alan Gittis,
Professor of Psychology*

Geek Week

Students from the biology, chemistry, math, physics and psychology departments battled it out Oct. 25-29 during their fiercest competition of the year, Geek Week. Throughout the week, they participated in several competitions inspired by one of the participating departments. Some of these events included building bridges out of materials including paper cups, push pins, pencils, strings, and more. There was another competition where students created neurons out of different types of candies like twizzlers and m&ms. At the end of the week, the participants were recognized for their hard effort. Awards, both silly and serious, were given to the different groups that participated. Junior Devon Struthers organized this year's event. "It's a fun, friendly way for different science departments to test their knowledge in a week long competition. Most of the time, the bragging rights for who is the "best science department" is more important than the prizes." After all was said and done, students really grew to value sciences outside of their discipline.

"It gave me a new appreciation for the different sciences on campus. I was so lost when it came to different chemistry elements or physics problems, but throughout this week I grew to appreciate these sciences. The diversity and encouragement from all the different departments was great."

Honors Convocation

The Spring Honors Convocation occurred on Wednesday, April 27th. The hour-long ceremony began at 3:30pm in Orr Auditorium. Honorees included: Pi Sigma Pi participants and inductees, Honors Program members, recipients of scholarships, prizes, or awards, and students recorded on the Dean's List for Fall Semester. Academic Department chairs granted individual awards to discipline majors.

The event followed Wednesday's Undergraduate Research Symposium. Student presentations stretched from 9:00am to 12:00pm.

More than a 100 students displayed their research projects.

The Undergraduate Research Symposium also featured keynote speaker Dr. Joseph Gardella, a chemistry professor from the State University of New York.

Together, the Undergraduate Research Advisory Council (URAC) and the Drinko Center supported and promoted undergraduate research. The Office of Academic Affairs arranged the Spring Honors Convocation ceremony.

Senior art majors take a sigh of relief now that their gallery is finished.

Art Capstone Showcase

Senior art majors showcased their capstones in Patterson Art Gallery on March 5th. After four years of hard work, seniors had the pleasure of showing off their pieces to the entire campus. Friends and family were also invited to this event. Seniors were given a 5ft. by 8ft. space to fill with select pieces they worked on, whether it was on campus or during their time at the Art Institute. After spending the week prior to the gallery preparing the space, the seniors opened the gallery. Seniors proudly stood by their compilation and answered questions from passerbys. Ashley Helmick was elated to have participated in the gallery. "I'm really excited to see all of our work being displayed," Hemick said. "It all looks really awesome."

Professor Kurt Roscoe, their capstone adviser, oversaw the gallery. He is very proud of the work they did "It's a good group of students who are very diverse," Roscoe said. "That's the exciting thing about it." Once the gallery was said and done, students were able to have their work submitted into the AIGA Cleveland Portfolio Review in April, where professionals in the art field reviewed their work. "It's a great opportunity for students to sit across from a professional and show their work and get some honest feedback on it," Roscoe said.

These are just a few of the many pieces included in senior Zack Wallover's portfolio.

Study Abroad

It's Much Bigger Than I Thought It Would Be...

Many college students make it a life goal to travel the world after graduation, but few are ever able to check this off of their bucket list. Every year, an elite group of students become the exception to this rule; these students study for a semester in another country. It is both an eye-opening and life-changing period of time for every participant in the study abroad program.

Twelve countries were visited by over thirty students during the fall and spring semesters. These students attend classes, like they normally would, at a college or university in the country of their choice. Unlike normal, however, the learning experience does not end in the classroom; students have the added culture of a foreign country to learn from. Through sightseeing, shopping, and interacting with the local people, students are introduced to a world that they are not used to.

Study abroad students come to realize the world is a much larger place than they ever thought possible. Junior Stephen Mildner had such an experience. "Studying abroad has really opened my eyes to the rest of the world. I have a better understanding of how the rest of the world does things. It has allowed me to appreciate everything around me."

Junior Becca Dick proves being away from familiar faces is the only obstacle she had to overcome while abroad; she stands in front of Mount Kilimanjaro in Tanzania, Africa.

Junior Marlee Tonks takes the time to visit and enjoy Portugal's beautiful shore line during her visit to Granada, Spain.

Rain showers aren't excuse enough to keep junior Addie Domske and a friend from frolicking through fields in the Scottish countryside.

Study Abroad

Junior Erica Szweczyk and friends pause for a moment during their hike through the Glens of Antrim located in Northern Ireland.

Brides & Wannabes

Anne Rematt tells her father, played by Nick Popovich, that she cannot marry the man she is promised to. Josh Sarchet eavesdrops on the conversation.

Greg McClelland and Alex Patterson sing of their belief in the eternal and conquering power of love in the song Verne Milovani.

Kathy Bachtel and Kevin Tomb discuss the possibility of their love remaining if circumstances were different.

Elise Heater, discusses with Anne Rematt, how the two of them fell in love without truly knowing each other in the song Mia Bella Fiorentina.

Christina Kinney is comforted by her friend, played by Christian Heasley, when she finds out that she cannot marry the man she loves.

Our campus may be located in a rural community far from the opportunities provided by a large city, but on April 8, Orr Auditorium was alive with the sights and sounds of some of the world's most well-known operas. "Brides and Wannabes" included songs and scenes from such productions as The Bartered Bride and Zigeunerliebe. While the selections represented situations from all regions of the world, the power of love remained the common thread. Students who performed that night found it to be a rewarding and enjoyable experience, and sophomore Alex Patterson is no exception. "Prior to becoming a singer in the opera I could not fully let myself become a particular character but now I love becoming any character from a 'bartered bride' or a 'gypsy dancer'. It is such a rewarding experience and I have learned so much in a little amount of time. I absolutely love everything about Opera Westminster!"

Hannah Jaskiewicz flits across the stage as Cupid, tying the story lines together from various operas performed during the night.

In the song Einen man hab' ich gefunden, Kathy Bachtel and Deanna Owens discuss how to handle their husbands once they are married.

Elizabeth Seiber and Emily Burns plug their ears as the daily 1 o'clock cannon at Edinburgh Castle fires loud enough for the whole city to hear.

Junior Will Armentrout practices his new bagpipes, hoping his Scottish background will magically enable him to play them perfectly!

This group of 14 WC Students went on a Haunted Ghost Tour of the city of Edinburgh which included going into the underground vaults and visiting Greyfriar's Graveyard.

Choir Tour

Scotland, here we come!

In late May, after the 2011 school year was over, a group of about 60 students in the Concert Choir and Wind Ensemble had the opportunity to travel abroad to Scotland for the annual music tour. The group traveled and performed in churches and cathedrals all over Scotland including Oban, Fort William, Inverness, Perth, and Edinburgh. Under the direction of Dr. Robin Lind and Dr. R. Tad Greig, the groups gave incredible performances and were very well received. "Scotland was the experience of a lifetime," says junior Steve Flory. "Getting to spend 10 days with some of my closest friends and favorite professors was unforgettable."

This brave group of students scaled Arthur's Seat on a very windy day. This hill overlooks the entire city of Edinburgh.

The entire group poses for a picture after a concert at the Canongate Kirk in Edinburgh with Westminster's Board of Trustee's Chair John Weisel and his wife, Jo Ann.

Sports

“Challenge is knowing that the person standing on the other side of the court wants to beat you as much as you want to to beat them; whose will, skill, determination, poise, and fortitude will prevail. Carpe Diem.”

Junior Caitlin Smith

"We always supported one another and helped each other to reach our own personal goals throughout the season. We worked hard all season and were determined to fight our way through the pack."

Junior Jennifer Krueger

"Sometimes, when I'm at the starting line of a big meet and my heart is pounding and I feel sick with nervousness, I wonder why I do it. However, when I finish that race and I've given it everything I have and my teammates cross the line with me, I remember why I run, and why I wouldn't have it any other way."

"I would say for our cross country team that we started by coming together as a team. Then, through the many miles, hard work, dedication, and time spent together we all became a family. Our team is very close and the memories that we share every year are unforgettable."

Getting to the Finish Line

Westminster College's men's cross country team raced through a solid Fall 2010 season.

Directed by Head Coach Tim McNeil, the men's cross country team involved nine participants, and no seniors appeared on the 2010 roster. The team members maintained a dedicated sense of camaraderie while training for the eight-kilometer competitions.

The Fall 2010 season stretched from September 4th to November 13th, including six major meets, as well as the Westminster College hosted Fisher Invitational.

The men's cross country team kicked off the season with 188 points and a seventh place title at the Fisher Invitational. Top 40 Titan runners were Kyle Filicky, Aaron Sutton, and Justin Jones.

The men's team earned 6th place at both the Hood Open on October 16th and the PAC Championships on October 30th. The team had traveled to Frederick, Maryland over Westminster College's Fall Break weekend in order to compete in the Hood Open.

On November 13th, the men's cross country team completed its season at the NCAA Division III Midwest Regional. Tallying 1,021 points, the Titan men captured the 33rd place out of 47 total teams.

Freshman Aaron Sutton pushes ahead with thoughts of a top place finish running through his head.

Junior Shanay Phillian

My favorite soccer moment was winning the semi-final PAC playoff game and defeating the undefeated Thomas More! My team played with unbelievable heart and passion every game, always fighting to the end.

Junior Kaz Zippert

"Heart. This year our team played with an extraordinary amount of heart. Every player had the desire and the dream to make it to the championship game this year, and we did."

Junior Brittany Grabski

"Our Women's Soccer Team at Westminster is not a team, it's a family. With the many injuries that our team suffered this season, we managed to stick together. I really enjoyed the hours upon hours we spent together to try and accomplish our goal, winning a PAC Title."

We Want it More

Lady Titans Dominate During and After the Regular Season

The Lady Titan soccer team began their memorable season on September 1 when they came face-to-face with the La Roche College Redhawks. Reigning victorious in their opening game, the Lady Titans started a winning streak that would carry them through the entire season. Larger schools brought their best players and strategies to the field, but the dream of winning this year's section title drove the women onward.

On October 27, with a record of 10-8-1 and win over the Bethany Bisons, the Lady Titans entered the President's Athletic Conference (PAC) Tournament. The biggest win of the season was earned, in the semi-finals, against the undefeated Thomas Moore Saints on November 3. The match went into double overtime, but the Titans were granted the move into the final round of the tournament. The championship game was played on November 6 against Washington and Jefferson College. They played their hardest but lost 3-1 to the Presidents. The Lady Titans ended the season with an overall record of 10-10-2.

Senior Danielle Struble and junior Tyler Dever were awarded membership on the 2010 ESPN Academic All-District Women's Soccer Team.

Senior Jarred Smeltzer may not be able to use his left hand but his footwork remains unaffected by the injury.

They huddle to celebrate a well played game.

Never Give Up

Titans Learn to Persevere During a Difficult Season

The men's soccer team started the season off with a solid win against the La Roche College Redhawks on September 1. The team experienced its first taste of victory together and hungered for more. Unfortunately, the next couple of games were not played as well as the men had hoped.

Senior goalkeeper Mike Codita was awarded the President's Athletic Conference (PAC) Men's Soccer Defensive Player/ Goalkeeper of the Week award for the week of September 27 through October 3.

Half-way through the season, the Titans experienced their second win in a match against the Waynesburg University Yellow Jackets. They would experience two more winning games this year, against Potomac State and St. Vincent College. The final game of the season was lost to Washington and Jefferson College on October 30. The team finishes with a record of 3-12-3.

Junior Coty Hainsey was awarded membership on the 2010 ESPN Academic All-District Men's Soccer Team on November 2.

The Team that Never Gave Up

Titan football players put forth their best effort this season. Though their record is not the best, the players are still proud of the games they played. They celebrated their wins and learned from their losses. After grueling practices and tough games, the players hold their heads high knowing they did all that they could. The football team is not just a group of men playing a contact sport, but a pack of brothers that have grown together throughout this season.

One thing that this team will never forget is the times they spent together. These athletes started the year off as strangers, and are now close friends. They learned to work together as a team. Football was not only learning about the sport, but learning about their teammates as well. Through their time together, these players became close friends. They built a sense of trust between their teammates. This experience of working on the team together is one that will be with them for the rest of their lives.

Keeping a Positive Outlook

Pumping Up the Crowd, One Cheer at a Time

The Titan Cheerleading squad definitely did their job this football season; they worked tirelessly to keep the crowd's spirits high at all of the games even when things were not going in our favor. The first ever night game on October 23 was a high point in the cheerleader's season. The girls on the squad strive to come up with new exciting routines and constantly challenge themselves with original and difficult stunts.

As said by Jenna Aldom, a junior on the squad, "Cheerleading is something that I have always loved to do. It is about being part of a team; we are there not only to support our school but also to support each other. We all have fun doing something we love. This season has been a great experience. We are trying new things and getting the crowd pumped." By constantly having a positive attitude, the squad helps to make the crowd's time at the football games more enjoyable.

Strong to the Finish

Passion, Dedication, Intensity

Passion, dedication, intensity; these qualities could be seen at each and every one of the Lady Titan's volleyball games. They worked tirelessly this year, and their hard work paid off when they made it to playoffs. The ladies on the team all agree that it was a good season even though it may have had its ups and downs; they simply bounced back and had a strong finish to the season. To achieve all that they did, a strong sense of trust and teamwork must be present on and off the court. No one player, no matter how good they are, can win without her teammates by her side.

Katie Palkovic, a freshman on the team, says that, "I love being part of this team because we are all unique and when we come together we mesh so well. We practice hard day in and day out always pushing each other, and when practice is over, we are all still friends." Volleyball is a true team sport that requires intelligence, communication, and technique for everything to run smoothly. The Titan volleyball team can definitely be described as one that has overcome the challenges they were presented with to get where they made it to this season.

Coaches Larry Ondako and Bob Kerr assisted the 12-player team. The basketball season covered mid-November to the end of February. The team competed in 26 total matches.

The Titans' final home game on Wednesday, February 16, served as a season highlight.

The men's basketball team rebounded from a 14-point second half deficit to defeat Geneva, 72-69. Sophomore guard Doug Smith led the team with a game-high of 23 points; Smith narrowly missed a career high. Additional key scorers included: freshman guard Christian Shea with 14 points, junior forward Rob Briggs with 10 points, and freshman guard Anthony Thomas with 9 points.

The men's basketball team finished the season with a 7-10 overall record and a 3-11 PAC record.

Diving into Achievement

Devotion, Teamwork, and Success

Despite the trials and tribulations that the women's swimming team has faced this season, Coach Klamut says that he is very pleased with everyone's performance. The team gets its strength from its unity with one another and the long hours that they spend in practice perfecting their technique. The unity that this group of girls displays goes beyond the definition of team, it is closer to the likes of a family. Even though swimming is usually viewed as an individual sport, the members of the team are always there to support one another and to push each girl to her maximum potential.

Sophomore Raychel Webster knows what it's like to work hard and have the support of the rest of the team. "It's tough, but I wouldn't want it any other way. Everyday I'm inspired by my hardworking teammates, and they've gotten me through a lot. We make it fun, and we do it with swag."

The girls ended their season with a third-place finish with seven event wins and 576 points in the 2011 PAC meet. They trained harder than ever so that each individual member could reach her goal while being cheered on by the rest of her Lady Titan teammates, of course.

Where Honor and Awards Make Their Home

The men's swimming and diving team completed their season respectably. The team joined together this season to prove that swimming isn't necessarily an individual sport, but the support of your teammates can take you a long way.

The men's team added three new members this year: Ryan Taylor, Riley Orians, and Jake Scherer. The new members have earned their places on the team with Scherer receiving a first-team honor, Taylor receiving a second-team honor, and Orians receiving an honorable mention by the all-PAC teams. "The new members of the team have exceeded even my expectations and are doing very well. The returning swimmers have stepped up to fill the void that the graduating seniors left behind, and have met all of their challenges head on," says the head coach of the men's swimming team, Robert Klamut.

The returning members also did their part this season with five others receiving first-team honors and four others receiving second-team honors. The men's swim team did well at the PAC Championships that took place in Grove City from February 17th through the 19th. The team took home eight wins this season and took four men's titles home from the PAC Championship.

Determination pays off

This year's baseball team had a terrific season. Titans started the year off with a bang as they went undefeated during their pre season training in Florida. This season reflected their hard work and determination, starting with their fantastic showing at spring training all the way through their PACS championship. During their season, the Titans suffered a major loss with one of their players getting injured, but were able to come together for a great season. During PACS, Titans eliminated Grove City from the championship. Unfortunately, Thomas More was able to stop the Titans in their tracks, ending their season. Despite this disappointment, the players had a rewarding season. Jon Rhoads, a sophomore pitcher, shared his feelings about this season.

"Coming back from Florida, we were very proud of our accomplishments. It was the first time ever the baseball team came back undefeated. Unfortunately, in the first two games of the season, we suffered a major loss. Senior shortstop Stevie Perotta broke his leg making a tremendous catch at the end of a game. We were all upset after that, but soon came together as a team. Different people stepped up in a big way and got us back on track."

The Titans came together despite their loss of a key player. This accident proved that no matter what happens, the players are willing to do whatever it takes to make their season successful.

Lady Titans Shine

Disappointing Start, Strong Finish

What a better way to begin the softball season than to play ball in sunny, warm Kissimmee, Florida? Members of the softball team had the opportunity to play 10 games there over spring break. As appealing as the location may be, the trip was not all sunshine; they left having won only three of the games they played the week of March 12-17.

The persistent Lady Titans did not allow these early disappointments to color the season; the return to unpredictable, Pennsylvania weather proved to be a good thing as the team won their next six of seven regular season games. The softball team continued to press ahead during the season, giving their all to every moment spent on the field. There were a few disappointments, but by the time sunshine returned to campus, losses had become a thing of the past. The Lady Titans ended their season victoriously with a record of 19-16.

Two players stood out as excellent pitchers this season. Both sophomore Chelsea Brown and senior Lis Schulz were awarded PAC Pitcher of the Week this year. As senior Lis Schulz prepares to graduate, she has fond memories of her time on the field. "I am so happy to be able to play all four years here and I love the girls that I play with."

They were 14-4 as a team this season. Latinovich shared, "We had a lot of depth on the team this year, which made us much more competitive than in past seasons." She went on to say "We also bonded so much this year, which really unified the team, and made for a better, more enjoyable season." Over the last four years the women's tennis team has been 50-21. This year they were the runner up in the PAC for the fifth year in a row. Caitlin Hosler, freshman, was the fifth player since 2002 to earn a PAC singles title. Hosler also led the Titans in single wins this year with a record of 15-2. Junior Dana Griesmer also led the Titans in single wins in this season with a record of 15-1. Jane Larson and Lauren Latinovich led the Titans in doubles wins with a 14-4 record and a second-place finish at No. 3 doubles in the PAC Championships.

Tough Start, Record Finish

The men's tennis team consisted of eight players this season: juniors Derek Fredrickson and Drew Trifelos sophomores Sean Black, Marshall Finelli, and Brad Thomas, and first years Ryan Carr, Garrett Conn, and Nathan Huber. They went 6-8 as a team this season. Fredrickson explained, "This season went great. We won six matches in a row for the first time since 1985." The men's tennis team went 5-2 in the PAC Championships this year and placed third. Fredrickson continued, "As far as our record is concerned, the first 5 or so matches were against extremely good teams, but they helped us to prepare for the easier teams we would play in the PAC...We went from being 5th place out of 6 teams last year to 3rd place out of 8 teams. To me, that is a phenomenal achievement to reach in one year. While I won't be a part of the team next year due to my 3-2 program, I can't wait to see what progress the team will continue to make next year."

Black enjoyed the successful season as well. He stated, "This year was great. We started slow, but we came around and being part of our historic winning streak was awesome. The team did well at PACs and hopefully we can build on this season and improve even more next year."

Junior Drew Trifelos

First Year Ryan Carr

Junior Derek Fredrickson

"It has been great to be part of something that has grown so much in such a short time and I am looking forward to how we will do next year based on how much we have improved so far in the three years that I have been a part of the team."

"This being my first year on the team, I felt as if I had to earn my place. Even though the weather was crappy, I still felt our season was strong and we really came together as a team."

"I love being on this team because we are a close knit group of guys who have a lot of fun together, and I'm glad I got the opportunity to meet and play tennis with each of them."

Lady Titans Receive Top Honors

Westminster College's women's track and field team ended an outstanding season at the PAC Championship on Saturday, April 30th. The women's track and field team, the three-time defending champions, placed second out of six participating teams at PACs. The Titans captured 146 points; this sum was just 10 points shy of Washington & Jefferson's first-place finish. The Titan women won three Championship events: the discus, the long jump, and the pole vault.

Four indoor meets preceded the regular schedule. The competition stretched from early February to late May. The outdoor season opened at the Grove City Invitational on Tuesday, March 22nd.

Westminster College also hosted three consecutive competitions: the PAC North Quad, the Westminster Invitational, and the Westminster Mini Meet. Victory at these home meets represented season highlights for the women's track and field team.

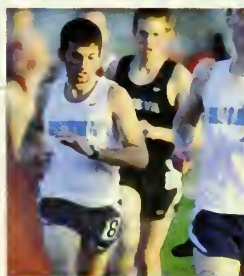

The Lady Titans shone individually as well. Emily Dolsak and Mallory Mack received PAC weekly awards. On Monday, April 11th, Alisha Slater was named the SAAC Titan Athlete of the Week.

The competitive schedule commenced in February and ended in May. The spring session followed an initial four indoor meets. The Grove City Invitational on Tuesday, March 22nd served as the Titans' first outdoor meet.

Season highlights involved first-place team finishes at the Wooster Invitational, the PAC North Quad, and the Westminster Invitational. Individually, javelin thrower Ryan Bell qualified for the NCAA Division III Championship. Also, at the Eighth Annual WESPY Awards, Adam Carswell was named the Men's Track and Field MVP.

Through Rain or Shine...

The women's golf team had a difficult season this year due to all of the rain that they received at their matches. Despite this obstacle, they managed to get through the season and still do well at several of their invitationals. Pam Bonneau, a junior on the team, says that, "The golf team is a joy to be on because it is so relaxing and everyone is easygoing. All of us girls get along great, and coach just makes everything fun. We may not be the best team out there, but we definitely have the most fun!"

Bonneau was named PAC Women's Golfer of the Week after she led the Lady Titans to a fifth place win at the W&J Southpointe Invitational. The women's golf team practices at the New Castle Country Club, and they work hard both on and off of the green to promote a real sense of team, which helps them to work well together. These Lady Titans definitely faced a rather daunting season, considering the awful weather they had to endure, but they pulled through it all with help from their fellow teammates.

"Our team had a rough spring season this year due to all the rain but we fought through it. We had a pretty good season. Everyone was pretty consistent which in this sport is everything. Playing on the Westminster Golf team was such a great experience."

"As a team, we persevered through all of the tough weather dealt and came out strong. I think on a personal level, we each became better golfers because of that. Thanks for all the memories...especially in Myrtle Beach!"

First Year Rachel Sherman

"This spring started off a little rough because the weather didn't allow us to get much practice in. Towards the end of the season though, everyone really started to improve and we ended the season well."

Senior Ryan Spear

Victory in the Rain

Titans Show Off Both Golfing and Team Skills

The men's golf team pulled through the difficult and rainy weather that they received this season, and managed to do well at their matches. David Paladino, a freshman on the team, states that, "The season went well. We played well in our tournaments and came through strongly as a team. We were able to shoot some low scores to get us close into competition in each tournament. We played to our potential, and the results showed that we were a team with unity that can achieve success."

In the final event of the season, the men's golf team placed second out of six teams. At the Grove City Invitational, Junior David Mlinarich took home medalist honors with a round-best 72 (35-37), finishing four strokes lower than any other competitor at the invitational. The men's golf team did a very good job this season despite all of the rain. The team gets its strength from its unity, and that is what helped them pull their way to victory this season.

Greek Life

The spirit of this campus is contagious. From the moment one steps onto the sidewalk, life-long connections are made. For many members of our campus, this connection moves beyond that of a simple friendship with a roommate or classmate. Our Greek organizations create sisters and brothers among students that live hundreds of miles apart from one another. Life on campus as a member of a Greek organization is full of opportunity, deep bonding, and moments that will never be forgotten.

The history of Greek organizations here on campus is long and rich, deeply rooted in all areas of campus life. Once founded in 1852, campus would function without the benefit of either a fraternity or sorority for 73 years. This period ended with the founding of the first Greek organization on campus in 1925: Alpha Gamma Delta. Sigma Kappa arrived on campus the following year, and Kappa Delta was founded as the third sorority in 1931. The guys were without a fraternity of their own but caught up with Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Phi, and Sigma Nu in 1938, 1939, and 1947 respectively. Phi Kappa Tau arrived in 1952. The 1960s ushered in the last three Greek organizations: Phi Mu, Zeta Tau Alpha, and Theta Chi.

Now, 86 years after the first sorority and fraternity arrived on campus, these organizations are alive and thriving. Members display letters and colors, because they are so proud of their sisterhood or brotherhood. First Years anxiously wait every spring for the opportunity to become a part of their chosen sorority or fraternity. Greek Week is one of the most important and anticipated annual events on campus. This campus has been forever altered by the presence of Greek organizations, but the personal connections the members have made with one another have changed their lives forever.

Fraternity Philanthropies

This year, the men's Greek organizations held several diverse events to benefit their philanthropies. Theta Chi hosted Battle of the Bands, Date Auction, and Take Back the Night, which all benefited the Lawrence County Crisis Shelter. Alpha Sigma Phi raised money from their annual Haunted House and donated the funds to the New Wilmington Volunteer Fire Department, as well as hosting the Relay for Life event that benefited the American Cancer Society. Sigma Nu won the Create My Tee contest, which involved a concert, t-shirts for the entire fraternity, and a check for $5,000, which they donated to the Mario Lemieux Foundation. Sigma Phi Epsilon gave funds to the Youth AIDS charity from their Jump for Hope event, which involved jumping on a trampoline for 24 hours. Both of Phi Kappa Tau's Phi Tau Phests raised money for their Hole in the Wall Camps charity. Overall, the fraternities on campus raised a great deal of money to benefit each of their charities.

The lady Greeks planned many events this year to support both their local and national philanthropies. During the fall semester, the sisters of Zeta Tau Alpha held their annual Shoot for the Cause to benefit their national philanthropy, Think-Pink! All proceeds go to fight breast cancer. The Alpha Gamma Delta's once again pitted the Homecoming candidates against one another in the Newlywed Game. Also, they sponsored The Singing Bee in the spring semester to benefit The Alpha Gamma Foundation. The sisters of Sigma Kappa presented their entertaining version of a beauty pageant, Miss Titan, in order to help the Alzheimer's Foundation. Phi Mu's philanthropy, Children's Miracle Network, was aided through the work put towards Stand up Stand Off. The sisters of Kappa Delta hosted the Carnival for Prevent Child Abuse America and the Purse Drive to benefit the Lawrence County Crisis Shelter.

Greek Week

Starting April 25th, this campus turned into a war zone. The Greeks battled each other in different events throughout the week. Whether it was tugging a rope, climbing a rock wall, or building a float out of whatever was in the back yard, the Greek community fought to the death (or until a winner was determined). Most events started in the evening around 5p.m. and lasted until dinner time. After a long day of cheering on their sisters and brothers, Greeks were required to go to a 2-hour Sing and Swing practice to perfect their moves for Saturday's show.

Though the events were grueling and intense, the Westminster community enjoyed the show and everyone was supportive of each other.

After long week, as tired as each sorority and fraternity may get, they always have their sisters or brothers to lean on. This week is filled with chaos and stress, but at the end of the day, the sororities and fraternities grew closer as an organization. Yes, this is a competition, but it is a friendly competition. "No matter the letter, we are all Greek together."

Sing n' Swing

Greek Week concluded Saturday, April 30th, with Sing and Swing, a dance competition between all the sororities and fraternities on campus. This year's sing and swing theme was Pop Icons. For the sororities Alpha Gamma Delta danced their way to victory, with music from the Black Eyed Peas. Kappa Delta showed off their dance moves and their sense of style to the music of Cyndi Lauper. Sigma Kappa sashayed across the stage with the help of ABBA. Phi Mu danced around to the pop princess herself, Britney Spears. Zeta rocked it out with the music of ACDC. For the fraternities Alpha Sigma Phi came out on top with their choreography to Justin Timberlake. Phi Kappa Tau broke it down with the stylings of Will Smith. Sigma Nu lived out their very own teenage dream with Katy Perry. Sigma Phi Epsilon went old school with KC and the Sunshine Band. Theta Chi rocked the stage with the British 70's band Queen. All the Greeks waited anxiously through every event during the week knowing that Saturday was fast approaching. They had been practicing for almost a week giving their full dedication to their routines. Sing and Swing is the culmination of a week full of hard work and late nights.

From the Editor...

One of my favorite things about Westminster College is how easy it is to get involved. Coming into this school as a music education major, I never thought I would be able to work for the yearbook, let alone one day become editor-in-chief. I am so grateful for this incredible opportunity and experience.

First and foremost, I would like to thank Connie McGinnis, our adviser, for offering me this position, and convincing me to accept it. It has been well worth it! Thank you to David Bollman, our HerffJones representative, who guided me every step of the way, and reassured me when I was in doubt. Thank you to our HerffJones photographers Jen Poltrack, Jim Rainey, and their staff. Special thanks to Deans Edman and Hawthorne, and everyone in the Student Affairs office for answering my constant questions and always pointing me in the right direction. Thank you to Tiffany Wolfe photography and Justin Zackall for their photographic contributions, and to any students and faculty members that submitted quotes and pictures. Thank you to Physical Plant, the Student Publications Board, and to Public Safety for not kicking me out of the office in the wee hours of the morning.

I would especially like to thank each and every person on my staff this year; this book would not be possible without them. Kelly, Alyssa, Ashley, Chelsea, Coleen, Laura, and Cody: thank you from the bottom of my heart not only for the time and dedication you put into this book, but for putting up with a scatterbrained editor. I hope you are as proud of our efforts as I am. And to the photography and copy staff members: thank you for being just as dedicated and hardworking as your editors. This book would not be what it is without you. To my seniors, Coleen and Ashley, best of luck in this next stage of your life. You will be missed. I wish you all the best!

On behalf of the entire Argo staff, I want to personally thank President Dr. Richard Dorman. Not only has "The Westminster Way" made an impact on our school, our faculty, and our students, it has also served as the framework for this year's book. Thank you for allowing us to use "The Westminster Way" as our inspiration and for leading our campus in a fresh, positive direction.

I am so looking forward to another year as Editor-in-Chief, and cannot wait to see where the year will take us.
